HISTORY

The Gevaudan beast terrified the region in the second half of the XVIII century.

In 1764, a man-eating beast started terrifying villages of the Southern Auvergne region. Dozens of children were attacked, killed and eaten by that creature and the news spread throughout the kingdom and all of Europe. The Kingdom's authorities in Versailles took the subject seriously and Louis XV sent professional hunters to the Gevaudan to hunt down the beast. Several large wolves were killed by the different groups of professional hunters, but the attacks went on...

Then the owner of Saint Vidal, the Marquis d'Apchier and baron de Saint Vidal, ancestor of the current owner of the castle, organized the final hunt on June 19th 1767. Jean Chastel, a local hunter, shot the beast on the slopes of Mount Mouchet. The attacks ceased definitely after that.

BOUTIQUE 5 STARS CHATEAU HOTEL

The Hotel boutique Saint Vidal occupies part of the XII castle. The beautiful suites & rooms combine the great experience of living in a medieval fortress and the comfort of modern luxury.

The owner, direct descendant of the Marquis d'Apchier (who had the beast shot down), has personally overseen the works and the deco which make this hotel absolutely unique in France.

THE MEDIEVAL BREWERY

Saint-Vidal beer was born from a combination of barley from the Velay plateaus, local rye and hops from Alsace. The result is a light and fruity lager with a beautifully tart finish, a reference to its terroir. It is brewed in the ancient vaults of the château, in the heart of a place steeped in history.

CREATE YOUR OWN BREW EXPERIENCE

Add a unique and immersive experience to your stay: make your own beer alongside an experienced brewer. You will participate in every stage (choosing the grains, hops, fermentation, labelling) and leave with your own personalised brew, which you can name if you wish.

DURATION: half a day to a full day

SUPERVISION: a professional brewer guides you step by step

SOUVENIR: tasting, bottles to take away, personalised label

Price according to options chosen and number of participants
